Manager's Statement

Diane Allengame
Acting Manager

I can't recall another year in the history of the Peel Heritage Complex that contained highs and lows of such magnitude as 2009—and I have 25 years to reflect upon!

In April, David Somers lost his battle with cancer and a celebration of his life was held with an overflow crowd at the Peel Heritage Complex in May. First as Curator of the Art Gallery of Peel, and then Curator/Manager, David inspired everyone who knew him. For two years he met his illness with humour and courage. The extent of his care for the Peel Heritage Complex was revealed when he and his wife Lorna established the David Somers Works on Paper Endowment Fund. David jokingly suggested the fund might reach $10,000... at last check it exceeds $29,000.

Earlier in the spring we presented "A Complex Verdict," based on the 1908 murder trial of Stephan Swyryda. Written and directed by Kristine Marchese, the play was held in the historic Peel County Courthouse, scene of the original trial. Delightfully, each performance was sold out and the gala fundraising evening was a tremendous triumph.

June brought news of our successful application for the Infrastructure Stimulus Funding from the federal and provincial governments. David's dream of a new home for the Art Gallery of Peel and adequate storage for our collections will become reality in fall 2011. The work of planning the new Peel Heritage Complex was awarded to Goldsmith Borgal Company Architects.

I can't say enough about the resiliency, hard work and enthusiasm of our staff. From dressing up for the gala, to being gracious hosts at David's memorial, to rolling up their sleeves and packing Peel's treasures... this group of people showed great strength in 2009. Of course it wouldn't have been possible without our loyal cadre of volunteers, who made a large workload manageable, brought us chocolate, and made us laugh.

2009 will go down as the year in which we accomplished much under difficult circumstances. Imagine what we can do in 2010!

Chair's Statement

Charles Scott, Chair
Peel Heritage Complex Advisory Board

Over my 20-year association with the Peel Heritage Complex and the Art Gallery of Peel, David Somers and I became friends. We spent time visiting artists in their studios, attending shows at public galleries, and meeting with private gallery owners to review artists' work for potential shows. On a personal side we shared the trials, tribulations and exultation of being husbands and parents. We broke bread together, and of course drank a little wine. I miss David greatly.

Thanks to all of the donors who contributed to the David Somers Works on Paper Endowment Fund, as well as the artists who generously donated works of art. This will ensure David's achievements live on at the Art Gallery.

On the success of "A Complex Verdict," we could not have done it without our volunteers and community supporters—in particular Davis Webb Inc.; Prouse, Dash and Crouch, LLP; McClelland Insurance and Colony Ford Lincoln who all helped fund the production. We also received contributions from the Brampton Historical Society and Friends of Bovaird House. Hopefully, the success of this event will lead to hosting other plays in the future.

Yearly, the Museum, Archives and Art Gallery are the benefactors of thousands of hours of volunteer time. This year in addition to the regular workload, we had to move our collections into storage. This could never have been achieved without volunteers who put hundreds of hours into wrapping and moving art and objects. I want to thank everyone who participated in this endeavour, plus our regular ongoing volunteer work.

Our board, staff and volunteers have their work cut out for them in the year ahead. With our expansion, we will become one of the largest cultural facilities in the GTA. We look forward to sharing our new space with residents and visitors. Our shows will be bigger and better, and our educational offerings will be expanded.

These are exciting times for Peel's arts, culture and heritage.

The Permanent Collection

The Permanent Collection includes the holdings of art, artifacts and archival records held in trust by the Peel Heritage Complex for the citizens of Peel.

The Collection grows in two main ways: through the purchase of items (usually funded by special grants or fundraising), and through generous donations.

In addition, gifts of precious family items and privately collected art speak to the trust and confidence placed in this institution by our donors.

Museum

In 2009, the Region of Peel Museum acquired 71 artifacts for the collection. Artifacts that provide insight into early businesses and handcrafted items for the home continue to expand and diversify the museum collection.

Increasingly, donations to the Museum are becoming more reflective of Peel's remarkable mid-twentieth century history. This was reflected in two donations that help illustrate the history of Peel's aerospace industry: a name plate from an Orenda jet engine, and a drafting table used at A.V. Roe.

Archives

The Archives is traditionally a busy place. In 2009, there were close to 1,000 research visits—237 were registered as first-time researchers. Researchers visited from many parts of Canada and the United States, as well as England. E-mails arrived from The Netherlands, Belgium, England, Ireland and Australia.

To make this all happen effectively, the Archives is assisted by an amazing team of volunteers. A staggering 2,300+ volunteer hours were logged by these dedicated people.

During 2009, there were 202 new accessions donated to the Archives. Of special note are two collections of glass plate negatives. The homemade negatives of the late Carter McLeod of Chinguacousy Township provide a glimpse into early 20th century home life. The Lindsay collection consists of glass plates used to make post-cards for Streetsville, and found many years ago in a pharmacy in the Streetsville area.

It is not often that three generations of one family can be listed as donors to an organization. Mrs. Lillian Rutherford is the mother of Janice Moreau, who in turn is the mother of Nicholas Moreau—and all three of them donated items to the Archives in 2009.

Art Gallery

During the past year, a number of significant gifts enhanced the Art Gallery's Permanent Collection. Among these is the first work to be acquired by noted British artist David Hockney, and from the collection of John and Gisela Sommer. The Sommers also donated works on paper by key Canadian artists Harold Town and Gordon Rayner, as well as print portfolios and bookworks.

Our collection of contemporary paintings was enriched with several works by Ron Martin given by Richard Leibtag, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Revine, Mr. and Mrs. John Mann, and Ron and Tabita Moore. Moshe Dobner donated a rare painting by Henry Saxe, an artist better known for his sculptures. Important historical works from the collections of long-time supporters Brian Ayer, and Al and Simmie Rain were added to our holdings.

Many artists have made generous donations of their work in the past year in memory of David Somers including Wyn Geleynse, Linda Martinello, Fausta Facciponte, Timothy Laurin and Michael Adamson. Collectors like Ron and Tabita Moore, John and Gisela Sommer, Joan and Ross Murray, and Brian Ayer have also made generous donations of works of art in recognition of David. The works on paper component of the holdings was also augmented with an important donation of the print series Flowers of the Holy Land by Thelma Rosner, a gift of the artist.

Exhibitions

Museum

Visitors of all ages travelled through time from the earliest First Nations settlements to the jet age... all within the walls of our historic jail. Our resident inmates, Shawn and Patrick, continue to fascinate visitors to our Jail exhibition.

Canadians and Their Pasts

In partnership with the Canadian Museum Association, the Peel Heritage Complex participated as a demonstration site in "Canadians and Their Pasts." The "Connections" exhibit was the Peel Heritage Complex's contribution to this project, which investigated how new Canadians combine their past with their new home. Created by local individuals and families to provide a newcomer's perspective, we featured poetry, music, art and food from India, Peru and Trinidad to help us explore the journeys of Peel residents. Akhil Patel, the Mendizabal family and the Ramoutar family generously shared their stories with the community.

All Dressed Up With Somewhere To Go

Weaving a textile tale of Peel's history, this exhibition used clothing to tell the story of the Peel community—its economy, social standards, geography and culture. Grizilda Bovaird's war uniform, Mary (Mortimore) Parr's wedding dress, Ken Letton's championship lacrosse sweater, and the top Isabelle Bottoms created to wear as a teacher were just a few of the artifacts that told stories of their local owners. Complementing the clothing displays were family photos, war posters, sports memorabilia and other artifacts from the mid-1800's to present day.

Our thanks to the exhibition sponsors Marilyn Parr McGuigan, Nortonville Estates, and Colony Ford Lincoln Brampton.

Art Gallery

Ranging from historic mug-shot “portraits” to contemporary photography and painting, our exhibitions showcased the diversity of talented artists from the local, regional, national and international scene.

Young artists were featured in our Peel Artists exhibition and our popular Annual Juried Show. The Viewpoints exhibition, “Presence Through Absence,” afforded emerging curator Fausta Facciponte, the opportunity to develop a curatorial project for both established and young photographers.

The year closed with an innovative exhibition by noted installation artist, Wyn Geleynse—who also created the “Peel Projection,” a rear-projected film of two moving eyes on the exterior of the building that will soon be home to the new Art Gallery of Peel. The projection attracted much attention in downtown Brampton, and a posting on YouTube brought us a whole new virtual audience.

Highlights from our outstanding Permanent Collection were on display throughout the year, featuring works by both historic and contemporary artists. Selections from John and Gisela Sommers’ many donations to the collection were on view in the PGVG Gallery during the summer months. Our closing exhibition in the Harry Gustafsson Permanent Collection Gallery, “A Passion for Paper,” paid tribute to the collecting vision of our late curator, David Somers.

Programs

Schools

Over 10,000 students visited the Peel Heritage Complex for school tours and workshops to complement their curriculum learning. Our most popular programs remained the First Nations and First Visit tours, and the Art in the Afternoon workshops.

"The students loved the art activities and it helped cover much of my curriculum."

— Northwood Public School

"The flow of the day was great. Obviously, kids enjoyed the hands on. The day enhanced the students' appreciation of art — the way to look at it — the day was very worthwhile."

Seniors Outreach

Close to 6,000 seniors participated in our growing programming. One of our most popular presentations is the photograph collection of Brampton-born, award-winning photographer, Russell Cooper. Photographs span several decades from the 1940s to 1970s and feature celebrities and slice-of-life images from Cooper's work at the Brampton Conservator. Seniors identify with both the people and local places in these photographs, from Winston Churchill to the flooding of Brampton's Main Street.

Creative Therapy

Our Creative Therapy Program is made possible with a grant from the Brampton and Area Community Foundation. Youth and adults with developmental and physical challenges participated in a series of specially-designed, interactive art workshops. The groups included PHABIS (Peel/Halton Acquired Brain Injury Services), and the Mary Centre, a community support day centre program for adults with special needs. A new "Creative Expressions" outreach program for schools was implemented. It gives students the opportunity to discover artistic and creative talents, to develop self-expression and build self-esteem.

"Students agreed that they loved all of the programs. The program provides a social setting for our students who are usually reluctant to join group activities, to develop descriptive oral language."

Special Events and Publications

"A Complex Verdict" was a dramatic theatrical performance based on transcripts of a controversial 1908 trial in Brampton. Accused of the murder of a young immigrant, Stefan Swyryda faced death by hanging. Held in the Courthouse where the original trial took place, the actors played to sold out audiences. Playwright Kristine Marchese's script brought the story to life.

Special thanks to the many volunteers who helped the cast and backstage preparations, selling tickets, ushering people to seats, collecting donations, and event promotion.
